Our Washington Correspondence. Official Washington is amazed tion with the sale of the Bethlehem

Trust. It has shocked even Wall Street, hardened as it is, and appalled the people. According to Mr. Dresser, J. Pierpont Morgan,

Charles M. Schwab, and their partners in "high finance," in return for a property worth $7,200,000, received $30,000,000 in the securities of the trust, together with an agreement that none of the stock or bonds of the trust was to be marketed until the holdings of Morgan, Schwab et al. had been sold to the confiding public. What was this but a double-intended cheat on a gigantic scale? A cheat on investors by taking their money for water, and a cheat on the stockholders of the trust by depriving them of a market for their securities until the holdings of the "captains" had been transmuted into money. What is the difference, in its moral quality, of the action of these "captains of industry"- these financiers who practice arts for the pillaging of the community, from those which land small swindling rogues in jail? Yet these discredited men have held, and still hold, the financial welfare of multitudes throughout the United States in the hollow of their hands. And among these are persons, who posed as Democrats during Mr. Cleveland's last term, and were
